Russia's Future Czar

The Russen Crown Prince, to whom the eyes of the wor'd have been drawn by the recent art met at assassination in Japan, is probably, says the New York Sun, the best educated men of his years in the world. For thirteen years the most celebrated instructers in the empire have done their all to devsiop the elementary training with which, in his minth year, he came into their bands. The Czsrewitch has isbored as industriously to learn as they have to teach. He has, moreover, got an amazingly minute and create an appetite.

Bas, moreover, got an amazingly minute and accurate knowledge of the geography of the great land of the Romancffs, for, since he has been old enough to observe for himself, he has accompanied hie faither and mother on all their longer tours in European Russia. The crowning of all this careful prepation for the responsibilities of reigning was to have been his journey through the East and especially through Asiatic Siberia.

In the Czarewitch's ninth year his father decide I that he must have eight years' drill in middle-grade studies, such as are taught in the last mouths of a high rebool and the first three terms of an American college, and four years' drill in higher sciences. Adjutant General Gregory Grigorevitch Dinacvitch, director of the second Ru-sian military school, was entrusted with his education. Classical languages were excluded from the course, and these were substituted by the elements of physics, mineralogy, botany, zoology, anatomy, physiology and biology. German, French and English were taught to him with the thoroughness of the Russian linguist. The lower course was arther extended to icclude a detailed study of Russian literature and Russian political history. The duration of the higher course was extended to five years eventually. All the great military sciences were comprised in the course. Civil government, the theory of taxation and political economy were emptied whole upon the Czarewitch's mental digestion. To all this was added a careful, comprehensive drill in juri-prudence, as taught at the great German universities. Between 1888 and 1890, the last two years of his course, he was a member of the Imperial Council and the committee of ministers and took active part in the work of both bodies, so as to acquaint himself intimately with legislation and administration.

Besides the Russian tours, supplementary to his school training, the Czarewitch saw a good bit of western Europe before he turned Steam Flooring & Planing Will his face eastward. He was at the Danish court repeatedly. He appeared as the bearer of a high government commission at Berlin and Vieuns, and he represented his father at the funeral of Emperor William I of Germany.

The journey through Asia was the Czare The journey through Asia was the Czare witch's plan for the last three or four years of his educational course. The object of it, as stated by him, was to collect experience which he might later utilize to the glory of his throne and the advantage of the Russian people.

Col Ingersoll's Wit

The following stories were told by Co'. Ingersoll during an after dinner speech in

It is said that contentment is the greatest possible wealth, and I suppose that next to absolute contentment, and nearly exactly the same thing, is perfect self-satisfaction. Laughter. I think I have found it here Laughter and applause.] It is said that an old minister in Kentucky, endeavoring to impress upon his hearers the beauty of the heaven they were about to go to, provided they joined his church [laughter], after exhausting all the superlatives of which he was master wound up by saying: "Brethren and states, in short, it's a regular old Ken-tucky place." [Laughter.] I suppose you ere expecting in another world, simply another Montana.

A few years ago a fellow from Maseachu-setts was down in South Carolina and as be walked along the street, after he had been there some time, there was an old fellow nailing a sign upon his house. "For Sail," and this Massachusette fellow looked at the old man and said: "That isn's the way to spell saie." And the old fellow, with a great deal of contempt, turned to him and

"How long have you lived in Charles-

"Well," he says, "I have been here about a year."

"Wel!, young man," said the Charlestonian, "I was born here; I guess I know how to speil saie." [Loud laughter and appleass | Tuera is nothing so beautiful as confidence in the place where you reside. Laughter.

They tell a story of Mrs. Jones, of Chicago, who visited Rome and who while there was shown some of the great marble masterpleces of the world, among others the Apollo Bel-videre. They pointed it out to her as being the most perfect form of man that had ever been conceived by the brain of an artist; and the old woman walked all around it looked at it from every point of view, ard

"That's the Apollo Belvidere, is it ?" "Yes."

"Well, give me Jones." [Loud laughter
